INTRODUCTION

On the nine rolls of this microfilm publication, M1933, are reproduced the Safehaven reports received by the War Crimes Branch during the period 1944–1945. These materials are part of the records of the War Crimes Branch in Records of the Office of the Judge Advocate General (Army), Record Group (RG) 153.

BACKGROUND

The War Crimes Branch was established in October 1944 as the national office for managing war crimes investigations and prosecutions. The functions of the Branch headquarters, located in Washington, DC, included formulating plans and policies for the war crimes investigation program of the United States and evaluating the conduct of the program throughout the world. The Washington office also served as a statistical center for the war crimes program, a collecting point for evidence available domestically, and a clearinghouse for evidence collected globally.

It was within the context of evidence collection that the War Crimes Branch received copies of documents known as “Safehaven reports.” Safehaven was the code name of a project of the Foreign Economic Administration, in cooperation with the State Department and the military services, to block the flow of German capital across neutral boundaries and to identify and observe all German overseas investments. In order to coordinate research and intelligence-sharing regarding Safehaven-related topics, the War Crimes Branch received Safehaven reports from various agencies of the United States Government, as well as Safehaven-related military attaché reports, regarding the clandestine transfer of German assets outside of Germany that could be used to rebuild the German war machine or the Nazi party after the war, as well as art looting and other acts that elicited the interest of Allied intelligence agencies during the war. Another aspect of the Safehaven project was the restoration of looted art treasures to their rightful owners.

RECORDS DESCRIPTION

The records reproduced in this microfilm publication consist primarily of Safehaven reports and letters, cables, and military attaché reports referring to specific Safehaven reports or Safehaven-related topics. Such topics include information on alleged art looting; business matters (including alleged patent transfers) pertaining to leading German industrial firms such as Bosch and I.G. Farben; and various Third Reich personalities. Although several small strips of microfilm are included in the series, the contents of these microfilm strips have been printed (provided in textual format) and interfiled in the appropriate places throughout the series. This series is arranged chronologically by date of cover letter or report, as appropriate, and, where possible, thereunder by report number. When Safehaven reports were received as attachments or enclosures to other documents, the date of the covering document was used to arrange the records. These date discrepancies are reconciled in the appendix.

² Entries 210–220 represent series artificially created by the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) of “withdrawn-withdrawn” materials that consist of records created or received by the Office of Strategic Services (OSS), primarily during the period 1942–45. These documents had been withdrawn from OSS records when major bodies of those records were transferred to NARA in the 1970s and 1980s. The security-classified withdrawn records were transferred by the CIA to NARA in 1997, and 400,000 pages of these withdrawn records were declassified and released in late June 2000. The more than 6,000 pages of records contained in entries 210–220 are part of a collection of documents that had been previously withdrawn from the withdrawn OSS records; thus their title “withdrawn-withdrawn” materials. Although a high percentage of the records in these series are not Safehaven Program-related, included among the records are various Safehaven reports pertaining to looted art and other assets. Copies of most, if not all, of these Safehaven reports were declassified in 1975 and formed part of the Intelligence Reports (XL Series), 1941–1946 (RG 226, NM-54, Entry 19).

APPENDIX

The appendix provides a concordance between report numbers, dates of reports, and, in cases in which reports are not filed by the date of the report (e.g., when a report is an enclosure to correspondence), the date under which the report is filed. It lists the Safehaven and Safehaven-related reports found in the series alphabetically by type, thereunder numerically by report number, and thereunder chronologically by date of the report.

The types of reports included are Airgrams (i.e., reports that were submitted as airgrams, rather than using a report format), Economic Warfare Reports, JICA/China Reports, Military Attaché Reports, OSS Reports, Safehaven Reports, Suspect List Reports, U.S. Naval Attaché Reports, and U.S. Navy Intelligence Reports.
